The researcher is curious to learn how pre-service English teachers are engaged in peer mentoring and teaching practice as preparation for blended learning, what the student have followed the process and challenges encountered during blended learning peer mentoring in micro-teaching, and know the preservice English teacher's experience with peer mentoring practices should help determine how to adapt or enhance the micro-teaching learning process. This research employed a descriptive qualitative research design to understand better how students think and what obstacles or hurdles face peer mentoring in blended learning micro-teaching classes. The subjects of this research are English education department students of Nahdlatul Ulama Sunan Giri University in eight semesters academic year 2022/2023. The researcher uses interviews and questionnaires as a source. The results showed that pre-service English teachers have a positive peer mentoring process in their micro-teaching classrooms, but there were also difficulties in carrying it out.

Peneliti ingin menganalisa sejauh apa pengalaman mahasiswa calon guru dalam praktik mentoring teman sebaya ini bisa membantu menentukan adaptasi atau meningkatkan proses pembelajaran micro-teaching. Penelitian ini menggunakan desain penelitian kualitatif deskriptif untuk lebih memahami bagaimana mahasiswa calon guru berpikir dan bertindak, atau tantangan apa yang dihadapi selama mentoring teman sebaya dalam kelas micro-teaching. Subyek penelitian ini adalah mahasiswa jurusan Pendidikan Bahasa Inggris semester delapan tahun akademik 2022/2023. Peneliti menggunakan wawancara dan kuesioner sebagai sumber. Hasil penelitian menunjukkan bahwa mahasiswa calon guru yang mengikuti proses pembelajaran dari awal hingga akhir merasakan dampak meningkatnya keterampilan mengajar mereka, sehingga mentoring teman sebaya dalam kelas micro-teaching memiliki nilai yang positif, meskipun ada beberapa kesulitan dalam melaksanakannya.
